The report of the prelimenary survey The report of the prelimenary survey and surrencer. Of course we cannot for the projected railroad from Wheeling to Dennison, printed in our columns this morning shows the route to be one of more than average advantages. In some more than average advantages. In some respects it offers unusual advantages.

The surveyor thinks it the best coal road in Ohio; and for people in Northwestern Ohio that is a matter of first class importance. There are

His report furnishes internal evidence of careful states considered the processions of the states of the processions of the processions. These instruments of Montmartre, who are exhibiting all the tigerish inand consciencious labor.

Now that it is established that a route of unusual excellence for this road exists, our citizens should next consider what they are prepared to do towards building the road. It is a matter that ought to be looked at without reference to temporary embarrassments. If it be said we cannot afford to subscribe, let us remember we can still less afford not to do so.

Mr. Forney and the Philadelphia

From the Washington Cor. of Cincinnati Gazette. Forney's declination of the Collector-ship of the port of Philadelphia, which was tendered by the President, it is stated was tenucred by the research as accepted as conclusive by the latter. The President will send in Forney's name to the Senate for confirmation the present week, notwithstanding the wishes of the former to the contrary. Forney's friends here are very confident that he is in earnest in refusing the position tendered him, and that he cannot be induced to accept it, and they also say that he is judicious in adopting Mr. FORNEY has latterly had some difference with the President. It originated, while Mr. Forney was still publishing the Chronicle, in the President's attitude towards Mr. Sumner and the San Domingo job. The Chronicle had been the "organ" of the administration and met official requirements with pretty good grace. The story is that Grant sent for Forney one morning and told him he must open out on Summer. Mr. Forney must open out on SUMNER. Mr. FORNEY to went out of sight. The nation is doomed declined to obey the command and immediate NER and San Domingo, in severe terms Mr. FORNEY and put a stop to his criti- and thence the

Butler Carries His Point.

WASHINGTON, March 21. To-day, with the exception of the pre-sentation of a few bills, there was nothing of a serious character done. Butler's per-sistency was at has rewarded, and under the call of States he got in his famous Kuthe call of States he got in his famous Ku-Klux bill, which has already had so many reverses. But he could not get leave to have it printed. When that question arose, Farnsworth at once objected. When the member from Illinois was persuaded to withdraw his objection by his Republican colleagues, General Morgan immediately renewed it, and the Essex member grew furiously indignant. He retallated by ob-jecting indiscriminately to every bill thenceforward offered by the Democrats, whatever their character or object. The whatever their character or object. The whatever their character or object. In Democrats, who began to get tired of this business, finally induced Morgan to withdraw his objection to the printing of Butler's bill, and Morgan arose for that purpose when Butler, not knowing his object and having the floor himself, would not allow the member from Ohio to be heard. allow the memoer from One to be heard. Later in the day, when being informed of what Morgan was desirous of doing, Butler arose and withdrew all the objections he had made to Democratic bills, and Morgan thereupon accorded him the same privilege, and so at last this famous bill will get into the printer's hands.

The Terror in Paris.

From the New York Trionar.

The French situation may be painted in one nervous line of Dr. Holmes: "The mob of Paris wrings the neck of France."

The conduct of the people of the great metropolis during the last two days will ment, for the brick in his hat was so go far to destroy any lingering sympa-thy for them which might have sur-vived the follies and disasters of siege and surrender. Of course we cannot of first class importance. There are but two difficult grades on the route; one in crossing the summit and the other within two or three miles of Denison. But these grades are only 52 feet to the mile, less than half the grades on many other roads. With these exceptions the grades are very easy.

We commend this report to the careful perusal of our readers here and elsewhere who have an interest in this enterprise. It furnishes assurances that may be depended on. Mr. BLICKENSDERFER > stincts of the untaught, savage mind, are in great part theorists, idealists, non-re-sistants, officious philanthropists. They are men who have suffered proscription in Paris in defence of human rights. On many platforms they have renewed again and again their devotion to the principle of the fraternity of peoples. They are t men who overflow in the peace assembli of Brussels and Geneva in lyric apostment of Brussels and Geneva in lyric sposts optes to the spirit of love and good wilt. They are not conscious hypocrites, but their conduct in these great emergencies is too apt to demonstrate that they deceive themselves when they imagine they are lovers of their kind. They are of that unhandy and implacable class of reformers for whom, as St. Just gloomily said, there is no rest but in the grave. They mistake their hatred of governments for love of the people. It seems like a sinister farce to think of the President of the International League It seems like a sinister farce to think of the President of the International League of Peace stiting in court-martial behind his barricades, and ordering the slaughter of theilpiess prisoners who have done no wrong, who have simply obeyed their order, and who only a tew days ago were spending their lives on the battle-fields of the Republic. These eccentric and morbid growths are seen in the track of every great revolution. We had them in ours, they haunted the corridors of Congress and the halls at Willard's in those early days of exaltation when the nation three cliately sold out the paper. It was expected for a time that the breach would be healed by a Cabinet appointment, but it was not. Now whatever may be said in Mr. FORNEY's disparagement, he has always been and still is a power in Pennsylvania politics, and as the editor of the leading days the mob has possessed Paris. The menture under such circumstances, is a very transparent proposition to buy off Mr. FORNEY and put a stop to his critical and thence the inundating tide has poured across the bridges of the though in guarded and temperate lan- the soundest and wisest men in France, Mr. Forner and put a stop to his criticisms. We don't knew at what figure he holds himselt, but for the credit of the profession we hope he will stick to his retusal to sell the independence of the Press for any executive appointment short of the Cabinet.

In addition to a very large the militia untrustworthy as broken reeds, has moved out to Versailles, leaving the invalidations, there are two full-page engravings, beautifully executed and printed on tinted paper—one being of a new style of furnace for smelting lead, while the other is descriptive of a new invention that cannot fail to interest every householder, builder, and architect in the town and follow the Government, finding the army and the tarmy and the throat seven the militia untrustworthy as broken a region to the mobility that it is announced that the Diplomatic Body, headed by Mr. Washburne, when placed by the city after Sedan, after the investment, when placed by hunger, when storned with shell, has a tast resolved to leave the ill-starred by hunger, when storned with shell, has a tast resolved to leave the ill-starred by hunger, when storned with shell, has a fast resolved to leave the ill-starred by hunger, when storned with shell, has a tast resolved to leave the ill-starred by hunger, when storned with shell, has a tast resolved to leave the ill-starred by hunger, when storned with shell, has a tast resolved to leave the ill-starred by hunger, when storned with shell, has a proposed to a very limited extent. tately to Versailles. out any moment into open revolution. There is a sympathy between Paris and her sisters of the provinces as quick and cellicate as the action of the telegraph—and at a time like this, it is only to be exerted for evil. Altogother, the disaster is so great, that all those which went before are as nothing in comparison. The sufferings of the siege were relieved by the cheerful pluck with which they were the cheerful pluck with which they were endured. The surrender of Sedam was promptly used and redeemed by the proclamation of the decheance. Even the terrible penalties imposed by the treaty of peace might have been turned into blessings, if they had been accepted with courageous and manly hearts. But to this misortune and discredit there is no compensation. This emeute was not needed—not provoked—it has no intention for good—it is inspired by a savage lust of disorder. Its temporary success has endangered the future of the Republic. It opens the door to a situation so intoleraopens the door to a situation so intolera-ble that the populace which weakly fol-lowed these madcaps into revolt will soon be ready to hall the most crushing despot-ism as a means of escape from themselves.
